Cannon Creek Crowned Grand Hunter Champion

The 139th National Horse Show resumed Wednesday with the top hunter riders in the country returning to the Alltech to vie for championship honors in their respective divisions. At the conclusion of the Goshen Hill Green Hunter 3'6", the Green Hunter 3'9", the Selma Garber Green Confirmation Hunter, the Wrenwood Farms High Performance Conformation Hunter, and the Corrigan Family High Performance Hunter divisions, Cannon Creek and Hunt Tosh were named Grand Hunter Champions.

Bobby Murphy (USA) set another solid, impressive hunter track. Murphy asked the top-tier hunter athletes to showcase their scope and athleticism while maintaining their form on day two of competition. The open strided lines and wide oxers challenged riders to execute their brilliance by finding a balanced gallop to the base.

With a clean sweep in the Corrigan Family High Performance Hunter division, Tosh and Cannon Creek added yet another tri-color to their remarkable record. Cannon Creek, the 11-year-old Holsteiner gelding owned by the Wheeler Family, has displayed nothing short of perfection through his past two seasons with Tosh. Tosh and Cannon Creek did not score lower than 90 points over the course of two days to secure their leading position amongst the rest of the elite hunter competitors.

"He [Cannon Creek] deserves this. He tries so hard and I give him all the credit," comments Tosh. "He went home from Harrisburg and he hacked all week, so this is first show back. Basically, I just try to stay out of his way. He will always do his part."

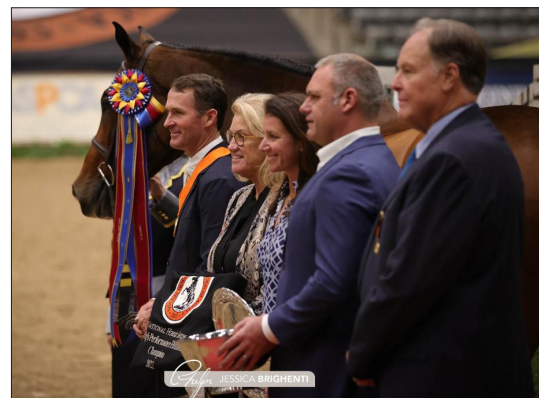

The duo has had an incredibly successful year in the spotlight, winning classes in the best of the best company, including the USHJA/Platinum Performance International Hunter Derby Championship. Most recently coming off of a championship in the High Performance Hunter division at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show [Harrisburg, PA], the pair traveled to the 2022 National Horse Show for the first time during their partnership to conclude the fall season.

"We didn't come to the National [National Horse Show] last year so this was the first year showing him here. So to come here and be champion this year is obviously great," said Tosh. "It is such a fabulous horse show and the trophies and awards are all wonderful. It is so special to hear past horses' names and to win awards like those."

The final award of the professional hunter divisions was awarded to Scott Stewart. For the 15th time in his career, Stewart was named Leading Hunter Rider at the 2022 National Horse Show. Stewart rode multiple horses to the winner's circle over the course of the two days of hunter competition.

Concerto and Seaside Champion Amateur-Owner Hunter Divisions

After an exciting morning of professional hunter competition, amateur riders took to the Alltech Arena to showcase their style and partnerships. Concluding the Amateur-Owner competition, Concerto and Caroline Ingalls were named Grand Amateur-Owner 3'6" Champions while Seaside and Samantha Sommers earned the Grand Amateur-Owner 3'3" Championship.

Wide and colorfully designed fences allowed riders to pilot their mounts to the base of the 3'3" and 3'6" obstacles in order to showcase their athleticism and jumping style throughout the course.

First to be awarded the grand tri-color in the Amateur-Owner hunter divisions was Concerto and Ingalls at the 3'6" height. Ingalls rode her 11-year-old Westphalian gelding to two second places Tuesday in the first round and under saddle. The duo came back today to put in two winning rounds with scores of 90 points in the handy, and 89 points in the stake to not only secure the blue ribbons in the classes, but the championship of the Amateur Owner Hunter 3'6" Under 35 as well. "He [Concerto] really steps up out there," remarks Ingalls of her longtime partner. "He is almost a totally different ride indoors than he is in a show back home [in California]. He loves the environment here!"

At the end of two impressive days, Ingalls was able to accumulate enough points to top both the under 35 and 36 and over age group sections to earn the Grand Amateur Owner Hunter Championship title and The 'Ruxton & Scot To Do' Challenge Trophy for the third time. "I was a little nervous coming into today" laughs Ingalls. "I just wanted to put in a really good ride. [Concerto and I] have been champion here in 2019 and 2021, so doing it three times was a really big deal. I didn't know if I could make it happen."

Immediately following Concerto and Ingalls' walk down victory lane, Amateur Owners in the 3'3" division contested for the coveted grand championship and rounded out the divisions with the handy and stake rounds. Seaside and Sommers walked away victorious with the Amateur Owner Hunter 3'3" Grand Championship title and the "Susanne Stroh" Perpetual Trophy.

Despite her busy work schedule where she does creative marketing for Netflix, Sommers sat atop her 16-year-old Warmblood gelding to prepare for the evening's classes after work. "Honestly, I wasn't feeling great coming into tonight's classes in the sense that my nerves can get to me once in a while" admits Sommers with a laugh. "But I do have a great team behind me and that helps me keep my nerves under control. I knew I had to be consistent in my rounds especially because I was neck-and-neck with Stephanie [Danhakl] and Vanessa [Mazzoli] so it felt really good to put in two solid rounds." Sommers' two consistent rounds with scores of 89 points and 86 points respectively, earned her second place in both the stake and the handy rounds to rack up enough points and clinch the championship at the end of the day.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Bunty
Armstrong

Whitney Brewster Armstrong. November 11, 1938 – September 6, 2022.
Bunty Armstrong passed away peacefully with her family by her side.

Bunty was a long time director of the National Horse Show. She served as Chairman of the Ladies' Committee for many years. Bunty generously donated the Whitney Stone Memorial Trophy in memory of Whitney Stone, President of the National Horse Show from 1946 to 1948.

Summerhouse Amateur Sportsmanship Award Winner - Jessica Lohman

After two days of adult amateur hunter competition, the Summerhouse Amateur Sportsmanship Award was presented to Jessica Lohman of Poolesville, Maryland, for demonstrating a high degree of excellence and integrity by supporting her fellow competitors throughout the show.

"The Summerhouse Amateur Sportsmanship Award was generously donated by Abigail (Abby) Friedman Stellar – she started this award several years ago," commented National Horse Show Vice President, Cindy Pérez. "Each year, the winner of the award is decided upon by the individuals who run the gates, the back ring stewards, and show officials, based on who they think exemplifies the spirit and inclusiveness of the national horse show."

Lohman was all smiles as she entered the Alltech to accept the award, beaming from ear to ear. Her positivity was practically tangible, as fans and exhibitors across the audience stood and smiled in tandem to applaud her altruistic efforts and positive attitude.

"I always try to be a good sport," Lohman said, flashing a friendly smile. "I'm very fortunate to play a lot of roles in the horse industry." Lohman and her husband, Alan, are the owners and operators of Lohman Stables – a full care hunter / jumper show barn located in Poolesville, MD. Both lifelong equestrians, Lohman and her husband have played just about every role there is to play in the industry.

"Be it owner, trainer, exhibitor, braider, judge, wife to a trainer...I've seen a lot of parts of the horse industry. So I think it's just important to be positive when things are good, and when things are bad. To get this award does mean a lot – when I heard who voted, it almost brought me to tears. That was very touching."

As she exited the arena, multiple riders and professional peers ran over to celebrate with a hug, justifying that she was more than well-deserving of this honorable award.

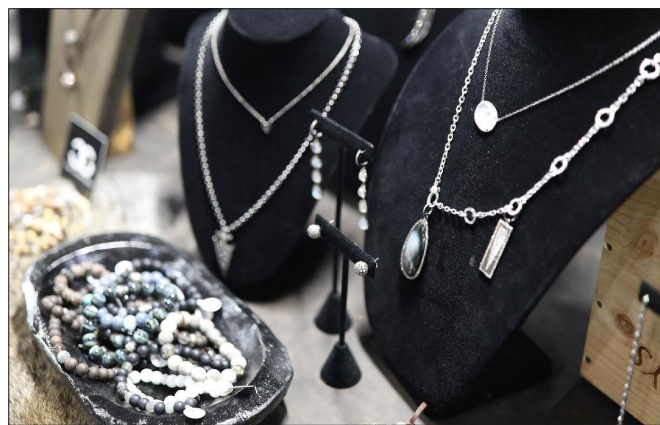

"I don't have to tell anyone who rides this, but horse showing and riding in general... I'm not sure there's a mentally more taxing hobby. It takes a lot of bad trips around the ring to help get you to a show like this. To be a supportive friend – even if I don't know someone – if they have a rough go of it, I try to say some encouraging words. And then if I see them have success later in the day, I'm going to be the first one to drop my reins, clap and whoop for them. We put so much time, money, and mental and physical energy into horse showing that we all need to lift each other up. One of my favorite sayings is, 'A rising tide lifts all ships.' You know, there's enough negativity out there – I really believe we need as much positivity and genuine kindness as we can get."
